Dallas Judge Bans Mediation in Race-Riots Case DALLAS — A Dallas federal judge ordered a black mother and her two children held in detention in a racially charged custody dispute and rejected an effort by the two sides to settle on a trial date. U.S. District Judge Nelva Gonzales Ramos denied the parties' request

Wednesday to set a trial date during a hearing in which she rebuked mediation attempts. "Mediation will not be an option in this case," she said. Ramos said she was concerned about a scheduling conflict that could prevent a trial from being held within two years. The judge also denied the mother's request to be released from detention to await a trial. Ronald James, the mother's attorney, told the

This is my first time so I'll need some help. I have just replaced my Dell XPS 13 the system is not booting and the BIOS failed to boot properly. Everything was working great on the old laptop but now I can't login to my account. I have a feeling it is because I did the upgrade to Windows 10 and it messed up the boot or something. I did manage to get to a Command Prompt and I have access to the files on the hard disk. I was thinking about getting rid of everything on it and starting over. I have also changed the PC's name to something else if that would help. Any advice on the best route would be appreciated. A: Try downloading and installing the Windows Support tool from Microsoft, then run it and reboot. There are a number of tools that can fix the issues that are causing the system to fail to boot. Here is the website for downloading it: If this does not work, you'll need to search for the correct solution to your problem and make sure you know the correct procedure to apply it.
