The.SHANGHAI (Reuters) - China's HNA Group [HNA.UL] will launch a venture capital fund worth around 2 billion yuan ($318.79 million) in Beijing in 2019, the company said on Wednesday, a vehicle that could become one of the country's first listed venture capital funds. Slideshow (2 images) The firm, which has seen its shares slump around 90 percent since the middle of last year on mounting concern about weak financials, said the fund was in line with its plans to set up a group of venture capital firms in Beijing. "These funds are standard venture capital funds with an annual output in the two billion yuan range," said a HNA official, who declined to be named as the matter was not public. "We are going to raise capital from our parent company and partners through initial public offerings," he added. China had 200 venture capital funds listed in 2017 but the market has been frozen for months because of market volatility. After the fund is launched, HNA's shares could rise on expectations that the firm is on track to return to profitability. The company has returned to profit in the last six months after a $50 billion acquisition spree that used much of its cash, and its share price is now only about half what it was at the end of 2017. PSM Xperia Z5 Dual E6683.A film regarding the life and impact of Michael Jackson's "Thriller" has been selected as the recipient of the upcoming 2016 Sundance Film Festival's World Cinema Competition. "Edges of the World" is the feature documentary produced by directors Vrinda Nair and Mark Bieli. The movie is the story of Nair and Bieli's documentary, which followed the journey of producer Paul Suber. Suber was the executive producer of "Thriller," and in 1993, Suber became the first African-American man to own and operate a major motion picture studio, specifically overseeing the production of the "Thriller" video. Suber also executive produced Lisa Bonet's HBO TV series, "Sex and the City." "Edges of the World" is the first feature-length documentary to follow the entrepreneurial journey of the father of the album "Thriller." "[Suber] took on an industry that was not on board with the very concept of making a video for Michael Jackson's music -- and he flew head first into the shark-infested waters of the music business, created a ship of hit songs and hit videos, and had a nearly 20-year run of worldwide song-and-video hits on the back of his studio and label," the film's website states. After the success of "Thriller," Suber continued on his journey by obtaining executive producer credits on "The Wiz" in 1978, the hit musical film in which Michael Jackson is portrayed by Stockard Channing, and the record-breaking, worldwide hit "We Are the World" in 1985. Nair and Bieli became fascinated with the story of Suber, who was able to convince a reluctant industry to produce "Thriller." "[Paul Suber] had started his own record label, and he just had an unbelievable business sense. Not only was he being asked to be an executive producer in the music business -- he's a black
