Judge Robert Hanson ruled Tuesday that the Iowa Tribe of Omaha cannot continue to call the school district's mascot "Chief," or the tribal name "Omaha," after hearing testimony from both sides of the dispute. The tribe challenged the decision when the Iowa High School Athletic Association decided to allow the mascot to include the chief's image. The group used to be known as the Omaha Tribe until its members removed their cultural identity and started calling themselves Indians. The Iowa High School Athletic Association says the change doesn't affect the tribe's sovereignty. The Omaha tribe is based in Nebraska. The Sioux are a tribe based in South Dakota and are currently in a legal battle to keep the "Bridgett's Baby" name for their mascot.4 (b) - 0 . 3 (c) h c L e t i b e (- 3 + 1) / (1 4 / (- 2 1)) .
