The insecticidal activity of toxic honeydew from the Asian corn borer Helicoverpa armigera (Lepidoptera: Noctuidae). The Asian corn borer, Helicoverpa armigera (Hübner), is a major pest of stored corn worldwide. The toxic components in the toxic honeydew of H. assulta are not known, and it is not known whether these toxic components cause oral intoxication or simply contribute to the oral toxicity of the toxic honeydew. Our objective was to test the toxicity of the whole toxic honeydew from H. assulta, and to identify toxic components responsible for the toxicity. Our results showed that the whole toxic honeydew was toxic to adult Galleria mellonella (Lepidoptera: Pyralidae) but not to larvae of Manduca sexta (Lepidoptera: Sphingidae). Toxicity was elicited within 12 h after exposure. The toxic honeydew was separated by chromatography into two fractions that were toxic and non-toxic to adult G. mellonella. Both toxic and non-toxic fractions contained toxic compounds, as shown by LC-MS. The toxic compound was the same in both fractions. We identified it as the compound, 4-hydroxy-2,2-dimethyl-5-methylene-2,3-dihydrofuran-3-one. This compound had toxic activity to adult G. mellonella at all three concentrations (1, 2 and 3%) tested. The toxic activity was 100% lethal after 12 h and correlated with G. mellonella weight, but this correlation was more pronounced in the toxic fraction. We have isolated and identified a toxic compound in the whole toxic honeydew of H. assulta. The insecticidal activity of the whole toxic honeydew from H. ass
